

This is the first thing we see when we open the page. Even though we have received very few chats, two of them were “how to start” and “how does it work”, so we could replace the Buy Crypto box with a register/login box. Honestly, I think a user who just arrived will not put money in before knowing who you are. On the left, the text could work, but I would change it (its Spanish version) to something like: “Palzea: The simplest way to buy and manage your cryptocurrencies.”

I would keep the subtext, and of course make the font bigger because the text is quite small. Another suggestion would be to add the Get Started section.

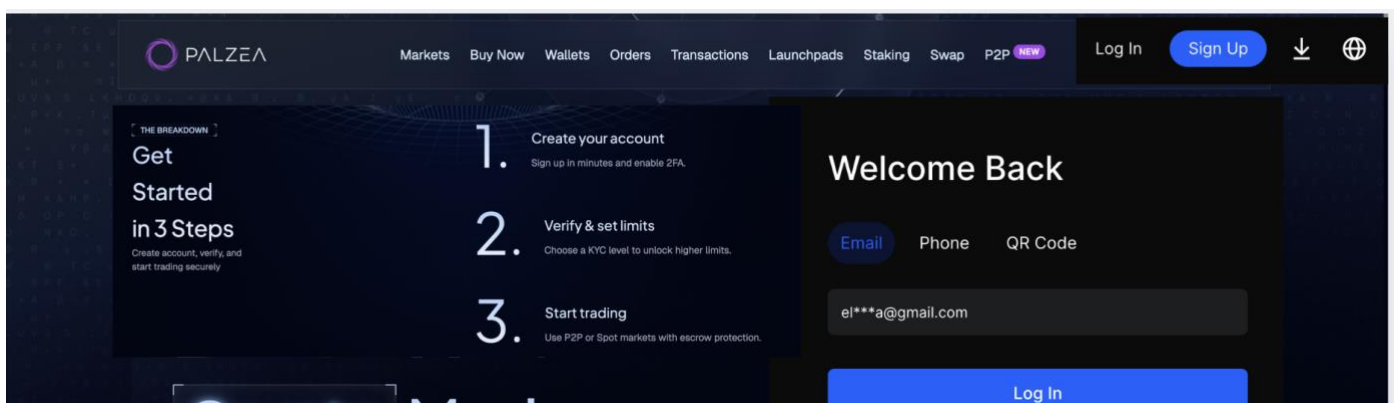

I would remove the polygon that rotates at the top. I think it is totally unnecessary, it does not add anything, and visually it does not look good. Movement can be shown in other ways. For example, when hovering over the word crypto, it could change to the word Palzea, or it could change by itself with a rotation effect or something like that (I don't know web design, so I don't know the correct terms).

This is my demonstration for this point. Please keep in mind that I don't know how to edit, and I used Canva.

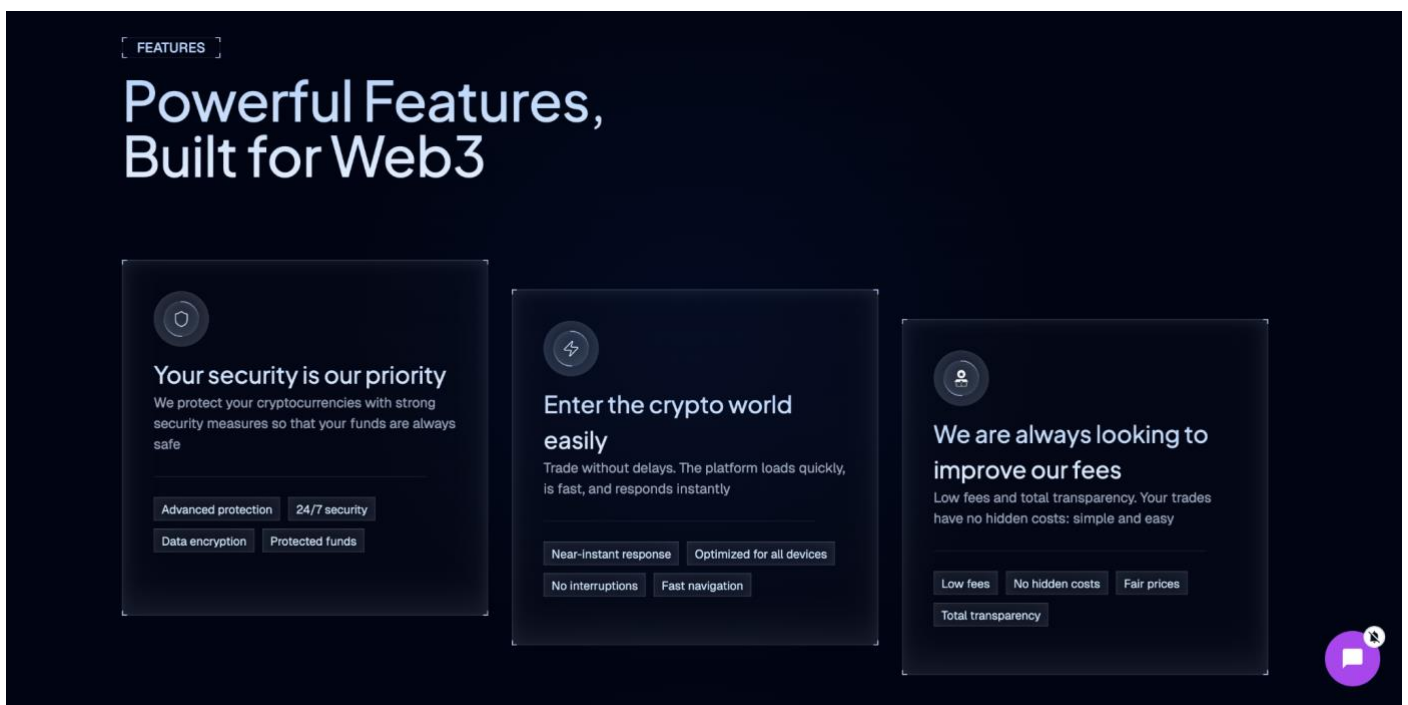

On the other hand, I would also make the Log In / Sign Up options more visible in the header. I want to point out again that I am using Canva, so the Log In and Sign Up buttons would be in purple.

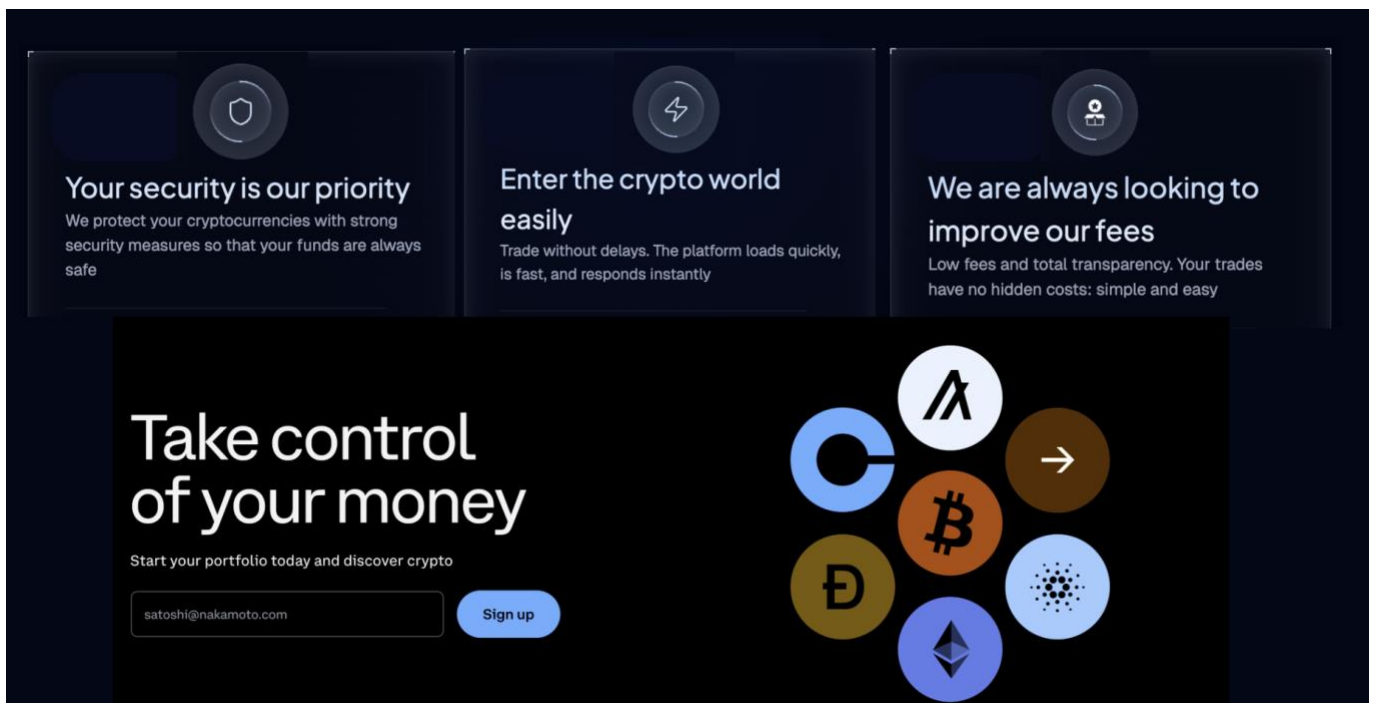

The second thing we see when we scroll down is this market table, which feels like too much. I would leave it for the dashboard. Also, the background with the word Palzea does not work and does not match the page's aesthetic. I would remove everything and instead place the Features section there. This way, first we invite the user to sign up, and second we explain a bit about our features.

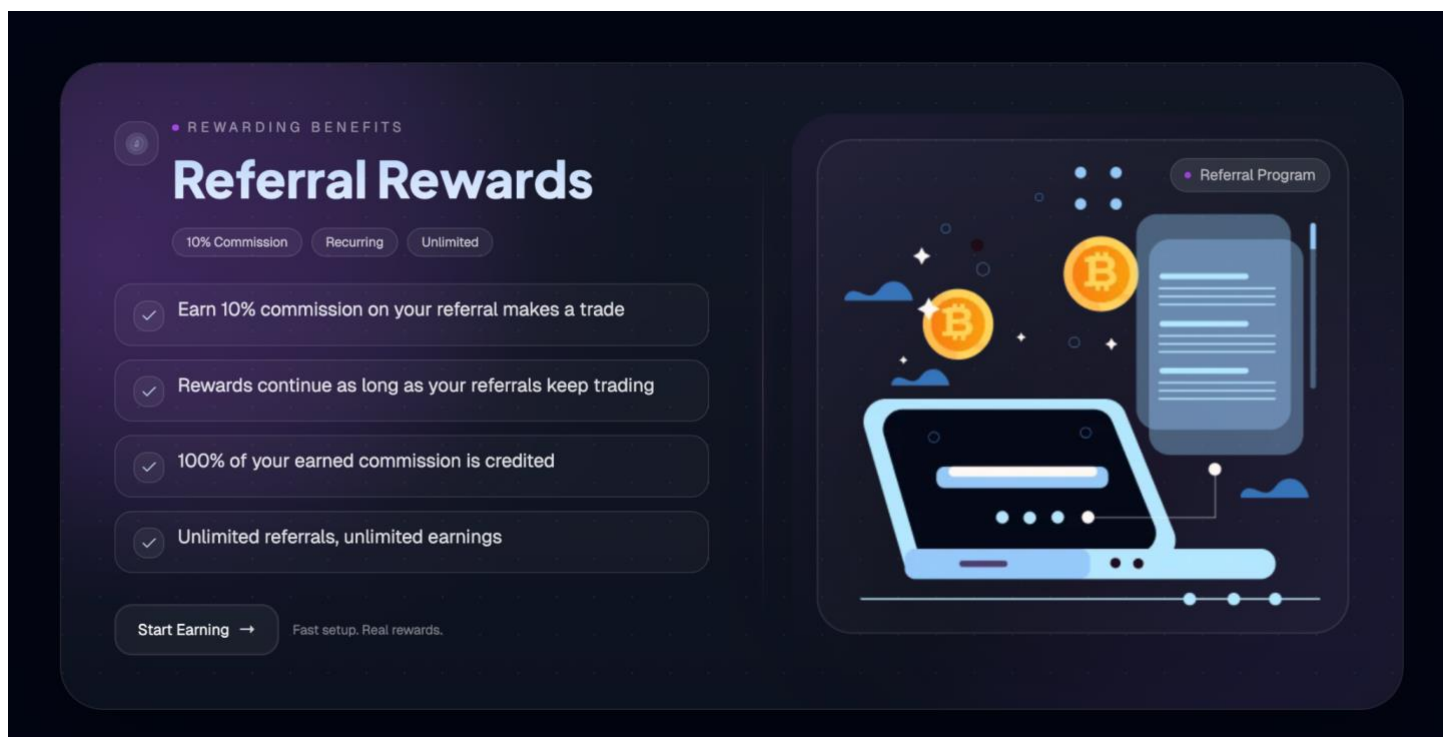

I am referring to this section. However, I would place the grids in a symmetrical way, not staggered. I would also reduce the text and remove some elements.

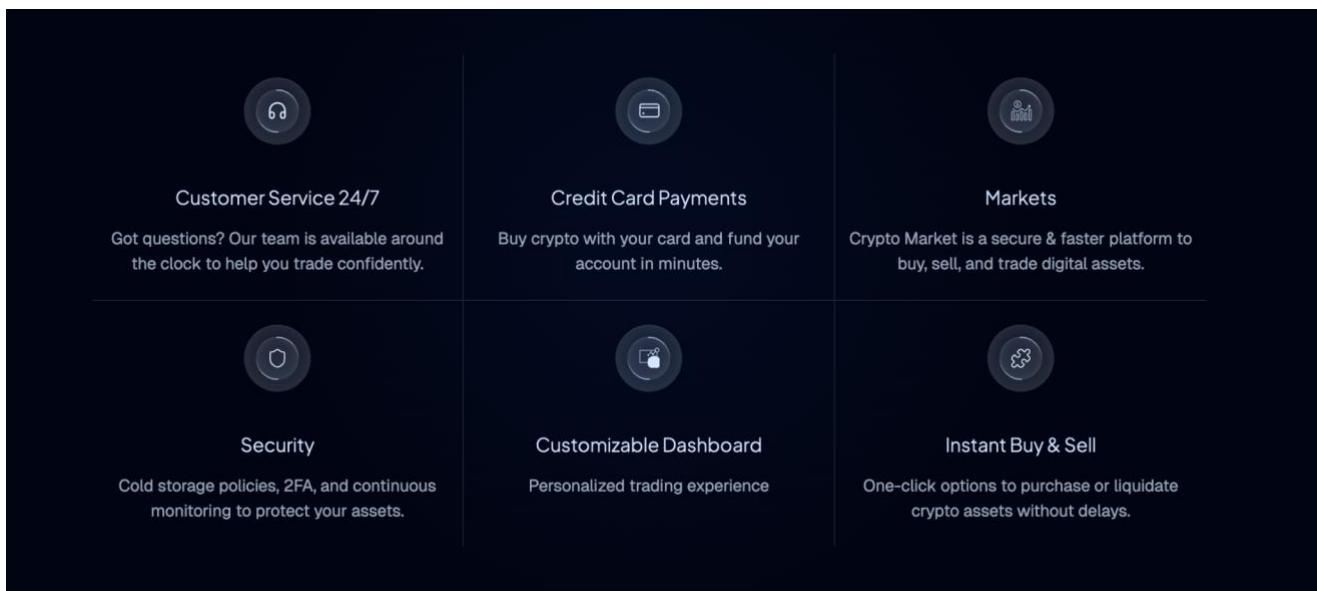

This is my suggestion. Please keep in mind that I am taking references from other websites, so it does not have to be exactly the same.

The third thing we see is the About Us section, and I would remove it completely and replace it with the referrals section. However, its design does not fully match the rest of the page, and I would replace the current image with another one, maybe a gift box or something similar. The square design in general does not fit with the rest of the page, so this section would need more work.

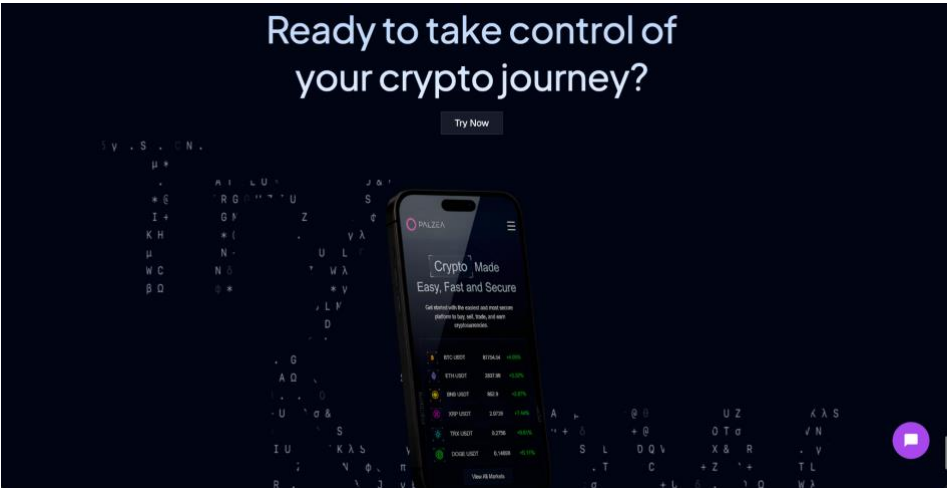

After that part, I would place this section. I like it, and I wouldn't change anything.

The second-to-last section would be the articles section. However, all the article images are the same. The user can't tell what each news or article is about just by looking at the image. I would use images that match the topic and have a dark background so they don't change the page's aesthetic, or I would remove this section completely.

Finally, I would keep this section and remove the rest. I truly believe that less is more, especially for a landing page. There are too many unnecessary sections that just overwhelm a new user who might not understand how everything works.

This is how it would look:

P.S.: I think I would remove the Blog articles section.

Referral section feedback: In this section, we see that the frame has rounded edges, which we don't find anywhere else on the page, so it doesn't match the established aesthetic.

The icon is completely unrelated to the page's aesthetic. It doesn't match at all and looks like it was taken from Freepik. We have a lot of icons that match in shape and color, until we get to these ones:

Even though I didn't have ideas for how the referrals section could look, I asked AI for help, and it gave me this suggestion, which I think could work and matches the page's aesthetic. Here, I would change the edges so they aren't rounded.

When we log in, instead of being redirected to the dashboard, we are taken to the market page. Ideally, it should redirect us to a dashboard or at least to the top of the page, where we can see more information about the platform, like promotions, referrals, and new features.

We can also see that the header doesn't change at all once we log in.

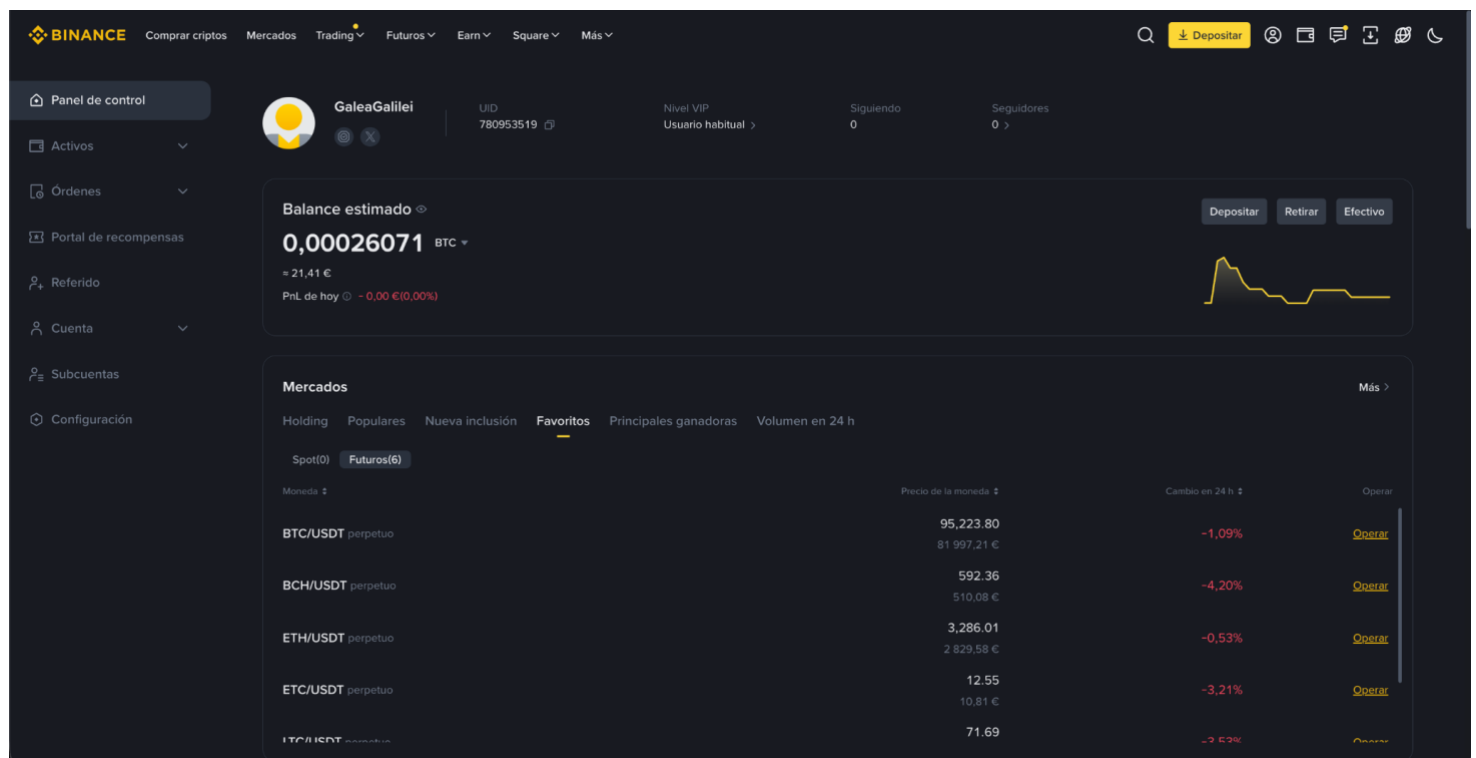

We need to add buttons like Deposit, Notifications, and Wallet. I took BingX as a reference. The Deposit button is the most important of all.

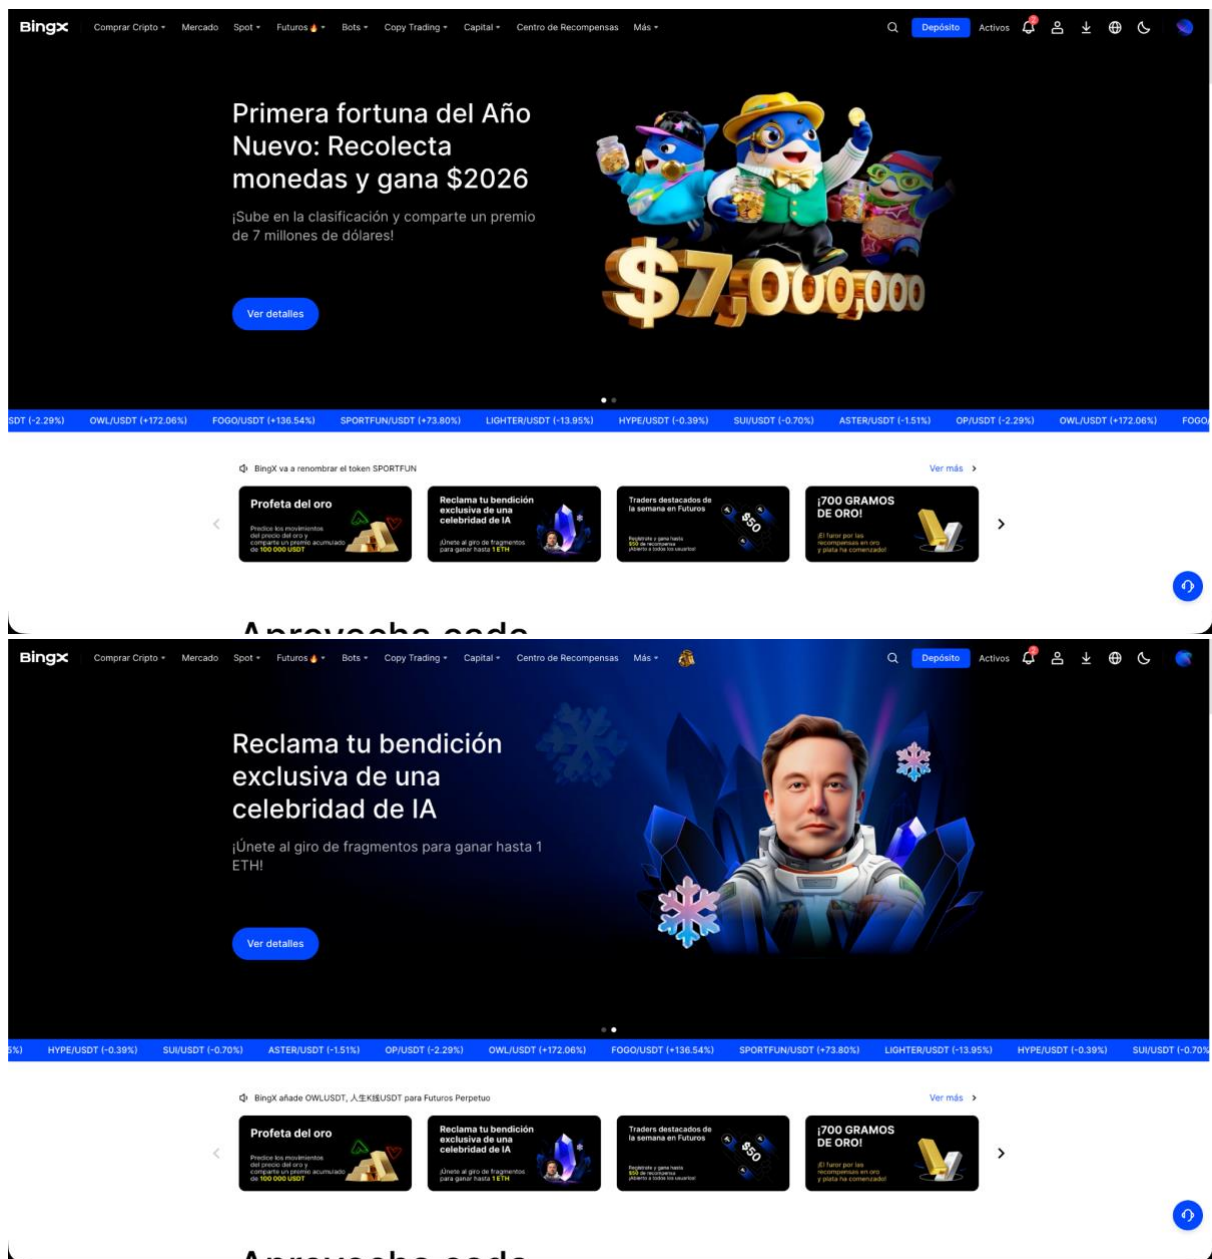

We should create a Dashboard page that invites the user to deposit and start using the platform. I would take Binance as a reference. It shows my user info, ID, level, balance, and the markets I've traded. Since this is what we see after logging in, it gives me a starting point of where I am on the page.

It also has Deposit and Withdraw buttons. It clearly shows where the control panel, assets, orders, and everything else are. Even if we decide this won't be the page we redirect to after login, there should still be a dashboard with a user panel.

In this Home section, I would add a sliding banner that shows promotions, a new feature, and referrals. I'm taking BingX as a reference.

On this page, we could include a quick start guide and/or a FAQ section that shows at least 3 to 5 questions. For example:

How do I verify my account?

How do I deposit and withdraw?

How do I start trading?

We can also reuse the Buy Crypto box and add it to this Home page just below the banner.

I'm also taking Binance as a reference for this idea since they have something similar.

In general, my vision for a Home page after logging in is like this, recycling some sections:

Reclama tu bendición exclusiva de una celebridad de IA

FAQs

Getting Started Portfolio & Insights Security & Features

How do I create an account on the exchange?

What documents do I need to verify my identity?

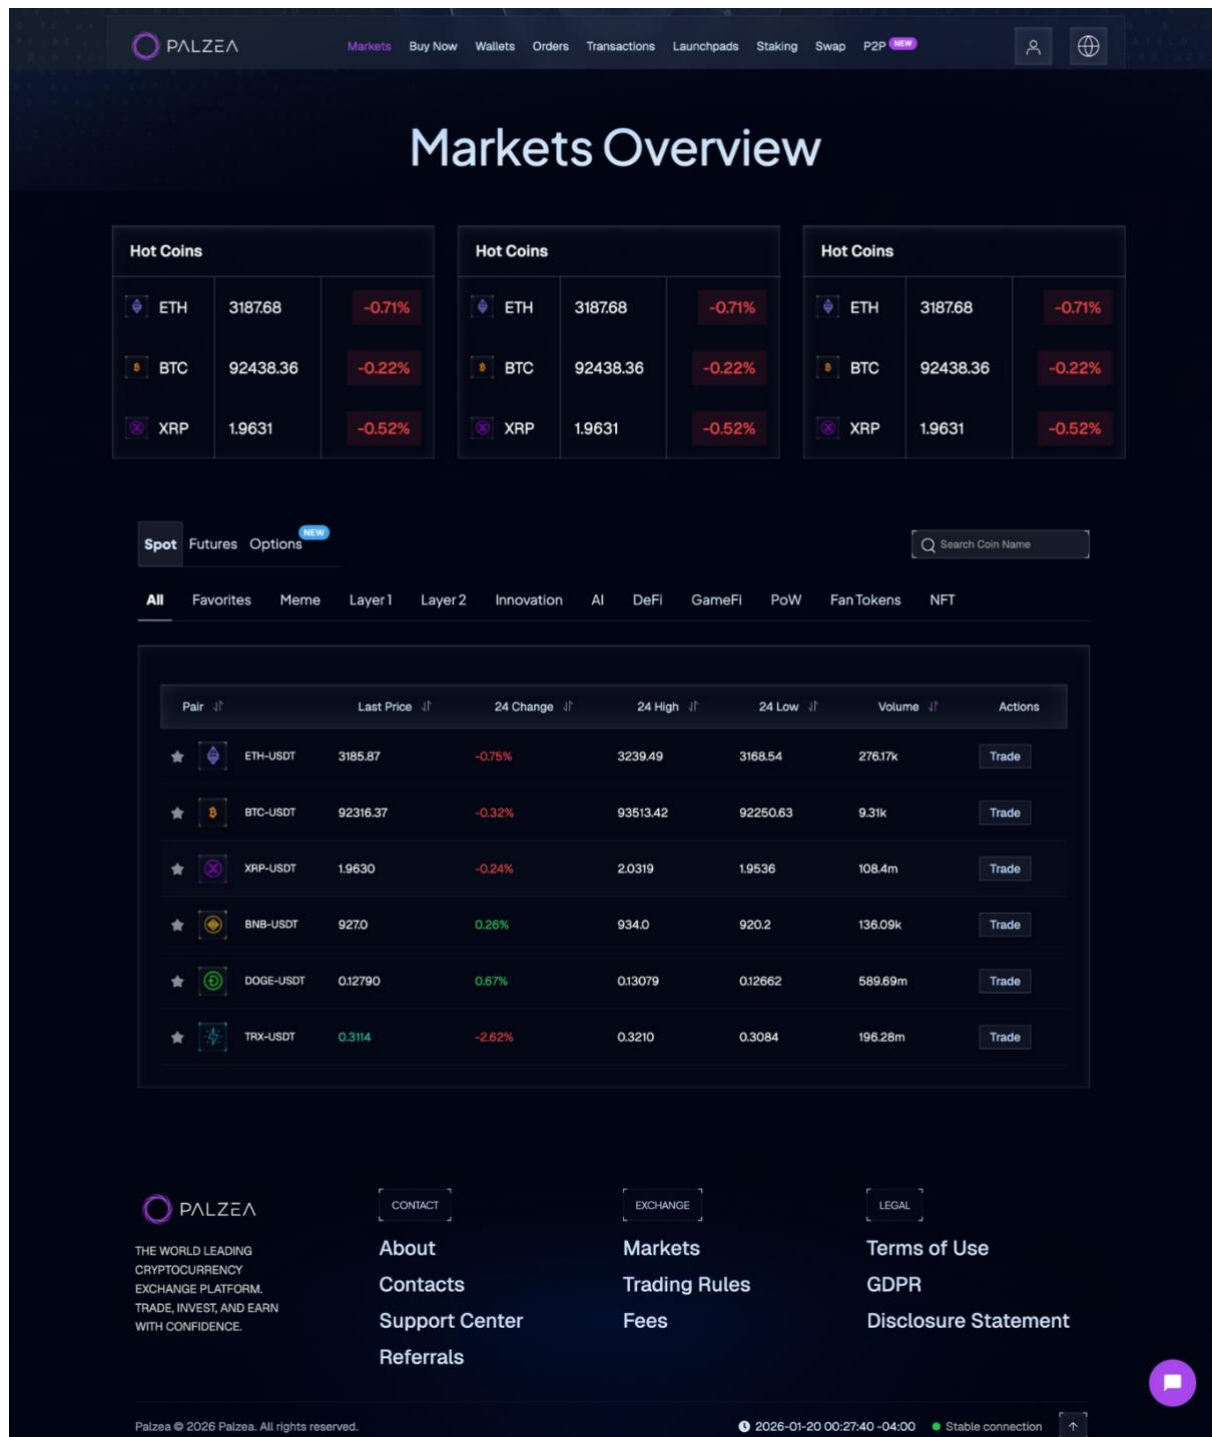

How can I deposit money or cryptocurrencies for the first time?

For the Market page, I would just remove the top disk and make the Hot Coins / Top Gainer boxes a bit more compact. The Market page has a lot of numbers and red and green colors, so it can be visually overwhelming because of all the information, making any distraction noticeable.

This would be my vision for this page:

Also, keep in mind that this isn't aligned, so it looks bad and messy.

Pair	Last Price	24 Change	24 High	24 Low	Volume	Actions
 ETH-USDT	3189.62	-0.60%	3289.49	3168.54	291.47k	Trade
 BTC-USDT	92411.79	-0.18%	93513.42	92250.63	9.45k	Trade
 XRP-USDT	1.9590	0.05%	2.0319	1.9536	108.36m	Trade
 BNB-USDT	9278	0.59%	9340	920.2	138.48k	Trade
 DOGE-USDT	0.12795	0.63%	0.13079	0.12662	606.32m	Trade
 TRX-USDT	0.3108	-2.29%	0.3210	0.3084	203.39m	Trade

Also, make the hover effect on the coins more noticeable. It's not very visible and takes away from the page's dynamism:

Resumen de

 BTC	88532.56	-1.20%
 ETH	2931.04	-2.21%
 XRP	1.9092	0.59%

 ETH	2931.04	-2.21%

For the Buy Now page, I would change its position in the header and add a Deposit button in the top left corner, just like I showed earlier.

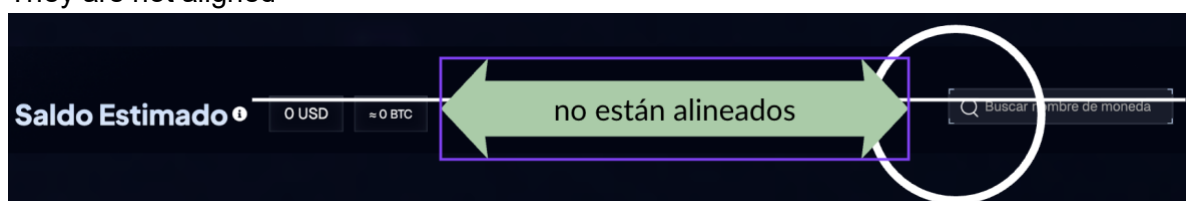

Regarding the page itself, my vision is the following:

En Wallets, please refer the screenshots below: The font sizes don't match — 0 USD and 0 BTC are in different sizes.

They are not aligned

Just like in the Markets page, it's not aligned.

Moneda	Disponible	En órdenes	En Futuros	En retiro	Tipo	Acciones
TRX Tron	0 ≈ 0.00	0 ≈ 0.00	0.0000 ≈ 0.0000$	0 ≈ 0.00	Coin	Depositar Retirar

For Orders, I would remove it and keep the Transactions page. I think it's the same or can work the same way.

For Transactions, please refer to the screenshots below:

The boxes aren't matching in size

Even though it's a small detail, I can notice it:

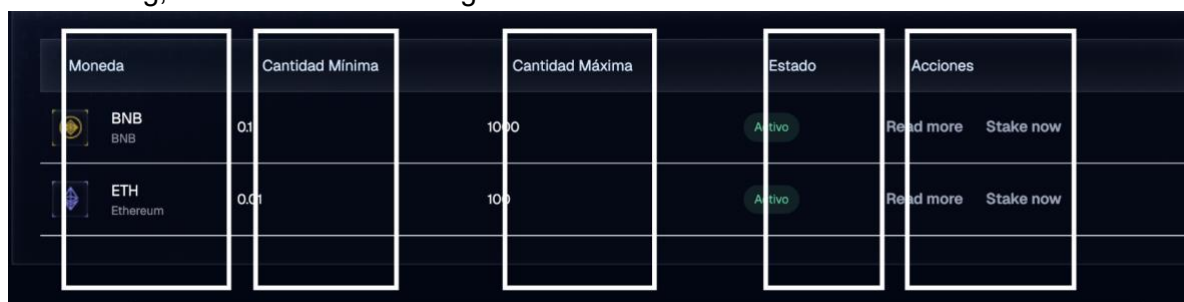

I would also change the illustration and put the Palzea logo. Then it would look like this:

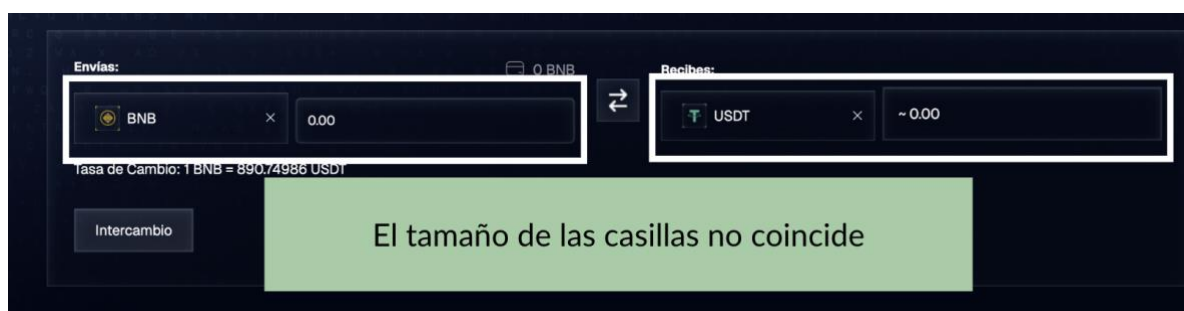

For Launchpads, I would also change the illustration to the page logo.

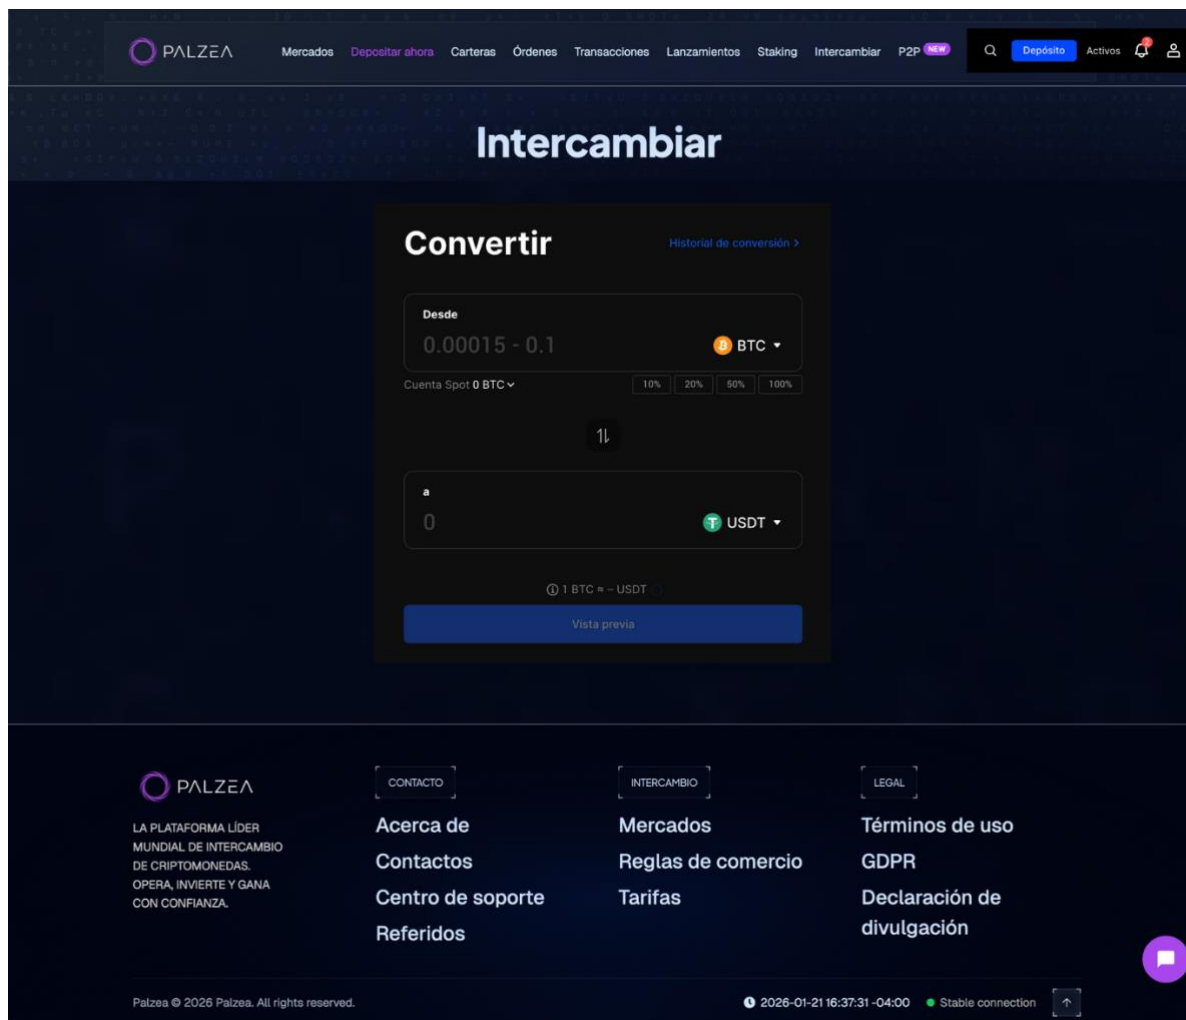

For Staking, the same — it's misaligned.

On the Swap page, I would make it vertical instead of horizontal. (The boxes aren't matching in size)

By vertical, I mean like this (reference):

For P2P, I would also change the illustration to the page logo. The design is fine, just align the boxes, which are also not the same size here.
